Voices of N/Pre

Rainy Season

The weather has become very wet this month so the N/Pre class took the opportunity to learn all about the rain. They played with an umbrella, used water to make their own raindrops and made a big rainbow using colourful crepe paper to put up on their wall.

I Love You

Father's Day is in June and everyone wanted to show how much they cared. N/Pre made lovely cards by making a car using their footprint and drawing a heart with their fingers. It was a great craft and I am sure everyone who received it was so happy with how amazing they were.

Favourite Colours

We had a day this month where the students and teachers came in wearing their favourite colour. Everyone was dressed in brilliant and bright colours. The whole day was filled with games and activities linked to the different colours on display.

Book Recommendation

"Today is Monday"

A story about animals eating different food everyday to help children learn the days of the week.

"The Elephant and the Bad Baby"
An elephant spends all day getting cakes and sweets for a baby who never once says thank you or please.

Baby&Mommy

Rain, Rain Go Away

Our smallest friends had some exciting activities too in June. They got into the rainy season spirit. Playing with the umbrella and making a snail craft out of crepe paper and paper plates. We are so happy to see how much they have grown in such a small time.

Kinder Memories

Dental Hygiene Lesson

The Kinders had a special dental hygiene lesson this month to learn how to properly look after their teeth. Students from a dental hygienist vocational school visited the class and taught the children how to brush their teeth in a fun and interactive way. They learned how many seconds should be spent on each tooth and what foods to be careful with to help prevent cavities. K3 also had their teeth dyed pink to show where plaque can hide.

Showing They Care

We made some lovely and very thoughtful crafts for the people we love this month. The K1 class used paper clay and crepe paper to make lovely photo holders for the dads and grandfathers. K2 and K3 drew pictures for their craft and surround them in lots of colourful squares to make a beautiful frame. Everyone wanted to make sure that their craft was as perfect as possible.

IB Thinking

Tanabata Wishes

The Kinder classes worked extra hard this year to prepare for Tanabata. They made crafts to hang from the bamboo in the classroom out of origami paper. They made their wish tags as well in hopes that they will get something special this year. We also started work on the Tanabata festival. We had five teams from K1, K2, and K3 come together to plan, design, and make the props they were going to sell.

Tanabata Inari

We had a fun cooking event where the students learned to make Tanabata themed Inari. They used shape cutters to cut stars, bears, and cars from slices of carrots and cheese. Along with sliced tomatoes and okra, the students made great looking, and even better tasting, inari. These kinds of activities are great for the students to learn not only how to prepare food but also where food comes from and how important it really is.

Open School

Our student's parents came to the school for a week to see what their children get up to on an average week in the school. Each day was a different type of activity. Monday was the Japanese inquiry, Tuesday was rhythmic and P.E., Wednesday was English for K3, Thursday was Chiiku, and Friday was English for K1 and K2. The kids were so excited to show off what they had learned since the start of the year and even more eager to get their parents involved.
